

HOST:

Hello and welcome to TommieTalk, a show where what matters to you matters to us. I'm Pat Hughes, and we have a great show in store for you. College students everywhere seem to be struggling to balance schoolwork and life outside the classroom. Chris Jones, a COJO major and expert in student life, is here today. Chris will be sharing some life tips for surviving college.

HOST:

More and more college students are finding it difficult to stay on top of courses, jobs, internships, and social life simultaneously. Our reporter Terry Smith talked to one student who has found a solution to some of those challenges.

HOST

Joining us today is the subject of that video report, Chris Jones. Thanks for joining us Chris.

[Q1] As an expert in student life, why do you feel students feel like they need to be involved in so many different ways?

[[ GUEST ANSWERS ]]

[Q2] Why should students take the time to assess their goals for college?

[[ GUEST ANSWERS ]]

[Q3] What one thing should students watching this program do to improve the balance in their life?

[[ GUEST ANSWERS ]]

Thanks again for joining us, Chris.

[To Camera 2]

If you or a friend have an idea for future shows, contact us at TommieTalk.

With Chris Jones, I'm Pat Hughes. We'll see you next time on TommieTalk.